The Wonderful French
An Old Camel
More War? Help!

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1926, by The Star Company.
FRENCH STATESMEN are having a hard time with the drowning franc. Heretofore, head of the government which held office less than 48 hours, planned a levy on French capital, disguised. Capital would see through the disguise. Small French people don't want to be taxed. The statesmen fear their numbers. Very rich Frenchmen don't want their capital confiscated, and government fears their financial power.

MANY DEPUTIES demand a financial dictator, but what could he do? You cannot lift yourself by your boot straps, financially or physically. But the French, however, will find a way out. They are industrious, thrifty, brave and determined, men and women both.

THE FRENCH have vitality. Simon de Jeune, at seventy-two, young and beautiful, had very young men in love with her. Now Madame Despres, of Roubaix, aged eighty-seven, establishes a new swimming record. You can't beat the French, and you don't want to.

BRITISH NEWSPAPERS invent the American government, calling Uncle Sam "Uncle Shylock." French crowds insult both Americans and British, for the good reason that France owes money to both Britain and America. Those that OWE you do not LOVE you. You must be reconciled to that.

IT'S AN OLD WORLD. A Swiss scientist in the Philippines has discovered "20 missing links." One aborigine showed a continuation of the spinal column, a sort of tail. Marco Polo says he saw many men with tails on his travels.

THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION finds in Montana the bones of a camel 2,000,000 years old. It was bigger than a modern camel, with more teeth. The Smithsonian announces the skull of a horse that lived in America ten to fifty thousand years ago.

SIR ALFRED MOND tells the Dadaist Society of Chemical Industry that science will control genius, morals and sex, and also prolong youth. Sex has been put beyond our control. Men's vanity would call for too many boys.

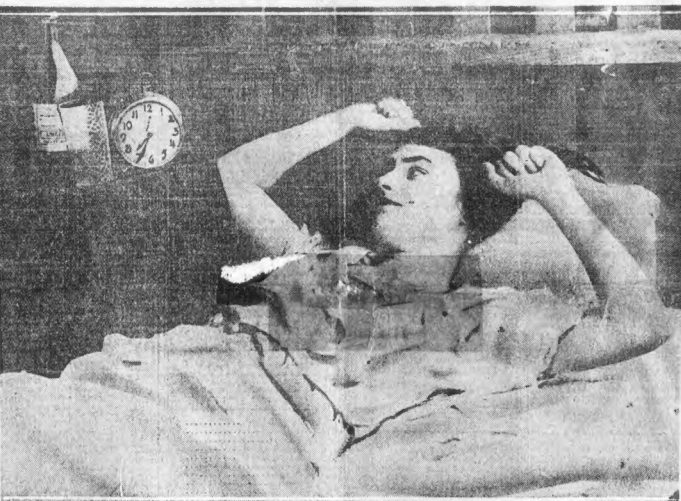

What we call "morals" is a reflection of the times in which we live. Man, always trying to seem a little better than he really is, improves gradually.

WHAT WE CALL genius today will be the commonplace of future ages. When life on this earth came out of water onto the land, and some of the Take your choice—and be hotter than blue blazes either way. Miss Amy McDonald couldn't decide what to do on a Revere sleeping porch as the mercury ticked up as rapidly as the clock, so a photographer snapped her still undecided.

POINCARE USES STRONG HAND

Stock prices shot upward in Wall Street today at the opening for a rapid recovery from low prices established in yesterday's last few minutes of selling. The drop yesterday was attributed to "misconstruction" of reports from Paris regarding the stability of the Bank of France. U. S. Steel and General Motors, as usual, led the upturn. After the first 30 minutes trading Continued on Page 3, Column 4.

HANSON BREAKS DOWN, HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Dr. J. Leo Hanson broke down and went today as he rested in a cell at the authorities in Municipal Court after he had been held in $2,000 bail by Judge Sullivan for Grand Jury action in connection with the death of Edith Bremer. "I am not crying because of fear," said the accused doctor, "I am overcome by the mortification of being arrested for something I know nothing about."

SIX GUNMEN SHOOT UP GEM SHOP, ONE KILLED

New York, July 22 (U.S.A.)—A jeweler was shot and killed and six others wounded today when six gunmen standing on the sidewalk in front of a Broadway jewelry store riddled the place with bullets. Rodick, owner of the store, died on the way to a hospital, and the clerk, Steven Proff, is in a serious condition. "Revenge is believed to have been the motive for the shooting, for as far as can be determined, there was no attempt to rob the store. According to neighbors, Rodick, in repelling a robbery last year, killed a bandit, and it is thought the gunmen may have been seeking vengeance."

The gunmen, traveling in a big blue sedan, arrived at the store about 12 o'clock, and two of their number entered the store. A tin can was thrown from the store, and in a moment their companions had joined them, and all six guns were spitting lead through the windows of the shop.

7 OVERCOME IN BLAZING SUB

Monterey, Cal., July 22 (Universal).—Seven members of the crew of the submarine 29 were overcome by smoke while fighting a blaze in the forward hold, while the boat was en route from San Francisco to this port, it was revealed when she arrived here.

The damage caused by the fire which ran a time threatened the safety of the craft and its crew of 44 men, was reported as "not serious" by Lieut. J. H. Cooke, commanding officer.

It was the herndon of Chief Machinist's Mate Noble that saved the craft and its crew, according to Lieut. Cooke.

Noble, a veteran of the naval service, was on board the 29 when she sank in 1921, holding her crew prisoners until she was raised three days later.

It was the experience gained while facing death in the 29 that saved the 29, Lieut. Cooke said that Noble, disregarding his own safety, went down into the hold first after time and helped the flames with a fire extinguisher.

The fire was caused when a short circuit in the motor ignited oil and smoke in the bilges.

Meteorologist Loveland, in his official forecast, today predicted relief from the intense heat tonight or tomorrow. The forecast reads: Probably thunder showers tonight or early Friday morning; much cooler Friday afternoon and night.

The heat wave death toll in New England was increased to 35 today, prostrations grew more numerous, the State House and municipal buildings were closed, together with places of business, and Boston street work stopped as the mercury mounted toward a new record.

At 1 p. m. the official thermometer registered 99, one degree higher than yesterday's maximum, and it was expected that the mercury would soon well above 100 unless long-hoped-for thunder showers arrived.

3 ELECTROCUTED, GIRL INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Worcester, July 22.—Three men were electrocuted, a girl was injured and six men hurried to the ground while attempting a rescue, after an automobile side-swiped a pole carrying high tension electric wires.

"Trans-Atlantic air traffic will be commensurate within six or seven years," he said at the Copple Plaza today, "and as far as I have seen America Boston is best fitted for the American terminal for passenger ships."

"Of course it is one of the nearest points in America for an airline from England and I think it would be the best place for a line between Italy and America by way of the Azores. "Americans understand better the field type of ship which would be best fitted for trans-Atlantic travel Continued on Page 4, Column 4

MILLS OPEN, THEN CLOSE

Adams, July 22 (A.P.)—The mills of the Berkshire Cotton Manufacturing Company, employing 2,000 persons, closed today for an indefinite period when not enough operatives reported to warrant operating the mills.
Five weeks ago members of the Polish "Ucravars" Union struck because of a change from a two-frame system to a three-frame system. Only 200 workers returned to work when the offer was made, and they were stoned by a crowd of small boys. Today Siles Honey, superintendent of the mills, was being in effect.
The officials of the mill declare the workers will have to make the next move if they wish to return to work.

IN THE HEART OF BAKED BOSTON THERE'S A COOL SPOT: NOTE FROG POND, WHILE AT REVERE—!

COOL? WHY, CERTAINLY! THIS IS THE LIFE!
Sitting comfortably in the sea and with an ice cream cone in her hand, Miss Amy McDonald of Revere managed to keep cool while very nearly all the rest of New England sizzled and suffered. That's one way to keep cool.

ONE BRIGHT SPOT IN A BURNING WORLD
In the very heart of Boston, which lies on all sides, a sweltering mass of humanity, scorching pavements and fiery-hot stone and steel—there you will find this spot, a fountain of solace in a sea of suffering. It's Frog Pond on the Common and its doing more business even than the ice man. It's the joy of young Boston.

IF THE ICE CREAM LASTS, WE'LL STAY COOL
Things are not as bad as they might be in Chelsea. There still is ice cream. These are Ruby Moore, 2; Marion Alstader, 2; Kenneth Kleynen, 2, and Louis Kleynen, 9, and they're making the most of a hot day by cooling off inside.

12 N. E. DEATHS IN HOT WAVE

Mrs. Sarah Powers, widow of Thomas W. Powers, was stricken by the heat and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Hamilton, No. 380 Ferry street, Malden. Mrs. Powers was in her 80th year and had eleven children, twenty-five grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren.

CLOSE PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

In Springfield, Mass., a school teacher, 62, died at the Springfield Hospital, where he was taken after being brought there by ambulance.

Charles W. Littlefield, 43, wood turner, was overcome at his bench in the mill of the W. D. Miles Company, No. 42 Riverside avenue, Medford. He was given medical treatment and taken to his home, No. 1 Round Hill road, Medford.

Closely following Governor Fuller's order to shut down State House departments except for a skeleton crew, Mayor Nichols issued similar instructions at City Hall. In addition he ordered all street work to be stopped at noon, and laborers, messengers and others given a half holiday.

With orders concerning heat relief yesterday still in effect, the mayor called a conference with Deputy Health Commissioner Dr. Charles F. Whitcomb and Deputy Public Works Commissioner Edward Murphy, urging every effort be made to relieve suffering.

BIG PLANTS CLOSE.

Following the conference it was announced that all health department nurses would remain on duty, taking no days off and attending to sick children in the congested districts. The Park Department installed additional showers in the parks for children.

Mayor Burleigh of Quincy closed all offices in Quincy City Hall and the Fore River Shipyard, the Edison plant at Weymouth, the Quincy quarry and other local industries shut down. Fire Chief McDermott ordered the fire stations to flood the streets and give shower baths to children.

While none of the Boston beaches reported all-day closings, several families arrived at Boston Beach, Dorchester, at 4 o'clock. At the Mill Pond, a number of bathers appeared at 4 o'clock.

106 ON PIER.

As the heat grew in intensity today thirty children, threatened by the soft driving rain, and by sea food's summer street scene, reported their own of milk.

In accordance with the order of the mayor, Fire Commissioner Dr. Charles F. Whitcomb repeated yesterday's practice, directing district chiefs to flush the streets in the crowded sections.

WHY, IT'S REALLY BOSTON! HOW ODD!

BOSTON FEB. 5-1926

NO, HONEY, THIS WASN'T PHOTOGRAPHED TODAY
Of course you won't recognize the old town in this picture. But it was younger then and everybody was wishing for just what they're getting now—a little warmth. Of course, that was February and humanity is apt to want July weather in February and vice versa, as it were.

While the official temperature was slowly climbing to 35, many thermometers in the street showed far higher readings.

Inside Commonwealth Pier, generally considered one of the coolest spots in the city, a mark of 100 was reached. Longshoremen, however, alarmed, quit work at noon as they did yesterday.

110 IN SHADE.

In a shady spot on the deck of the American Hawaiian line steamer Muscatine, a thermometer registered 110, while a read-off at Commercial Wharf reported 98 inside and 107 outside.

10 BELOW ZERO!

Undoubtedly one of the hottest places was the engine room of the tug, Edwin L. Phillips, where a thermometer of 107 was registered, while the coldest was the Company plant, with a mark of minus 16.

The first Boston factory to close was the U. S. Fastener Company, Columbia road, South Boston, which shut down its office and factory at 3:40. It was announced that most of the other factories in South Boston, including that of the Gillette safety razor Company in First street, the Walworth Manufacturing Company at City Point, and the shoe factories in and near a street, would close at noon.

The first vacation reported today in London was that of Miss Harriet Merriam of No. 474 Main street, Charlestown. She was overcome at the North Station Elevated station and was taken to the St. Elizabeth Hospital.

By 11 o'clock the mercury had risen to 84, and Meteorologist Lyall expected it would reach 100 this afternoon.

The maximum July temperature in the history of the local weather bureau was 104, a mark reached on July 4, 1911.

Joyful tidings were received from the West where the heat wave started, that it had broken and cooler weather prevailed. This would indicate that similar conditions will prevail in the East shortly.

In Denver it was reported that the thermometer showed a drop of 24 degrees from the 83 index, which the Coloradoans were sweltering.

Worcester's official thermometer at City Hall registered 84 degrees at 5 o'clock today, nine degrees hotter than at the same hour yesterday. The maximum of the previous day in London was 74 degrees.

Similar conditions obtained in other cities of New England, where yesterday the heat took nine lives, two more than on the preceding day, establishing a new record for July 31 as in Boston, where a maximum temperature of 98 broke all records.

Springfield had a new record of 95. Westfield followed suit with 94, while in Northford, Me., unofficial readings showed 110 degrees. The official mark of 94 broke the record that has stood since 1913.

In Burlington, Vt., the thermometer registered 87, within one degree of equalling the record during the ten years of the existence of the weather bureau there.

Manchester, N. H., reported the hottest day of 20 years, 91, at 4 o'clock, and Providence registered under a maximum of 82.

One man was killed by the heat and another was overcome in the hottest day of the year in that state.

At 5 o'clock the official mercury was fairly comfortable.

SCORE DEAD IN CHICAGO HEAT

Chicago, July 22 (I.N.S.)—Chicago's worst heat wave had moved eastward today, leaving in its wake more than a score of dead and hundreds of cases of prostration.

The heavy blanket of heat, the most severe to envelope the Middle West in a quarter of a century, was crated by cooling showers that fell during the night. With the mercury hovering around 80, rain began falling at 10 o'clock and within an hour the temperature had fallen 12 to 15 degrees. A moon temperature of 70 was predicted for today.

The foggy waves reached its peak here yesterday afternoon when the official reading registered 95 degrees.

The heat was so intense that asphalt melted in the streets and industrial works had to leave their jobs, the iron work becoming so hot they could not handle it.

The heat was general throughout the country, the wave originating in the Rocky Mountain States and spreading eastward to the Atlantic seaboard.

The storms that brought relief to Chicago were moving eastward today and should reach the sweltering cities along the Atlantic Coast by tonight or tomorrow.

had dropped to 60 after holding around 80 until 2 this morning, but with the coming of the new day the thermometer began to show higher and higher readings.

By 6 o'clock it had jumped to 80, thirteen degrees better than the same hour yesterday, and the weather bureau said that the heat that the temperature would mount well over 100 before mid-afternoon.

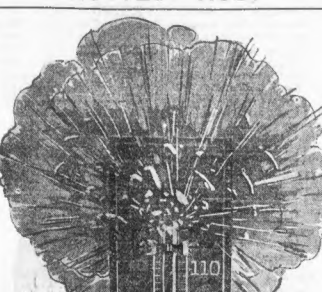

Boston was in a "City of Dreadful Night" at least in the congested quarters, where sleep was impossible.

Through the forethought of Mayor Nichols, who had ordered all piers and bridges kept open through the night, together with free rides on ferries, a certain percentage of the women and children of the city were spared.

The great majority, however, remained in their homes, although hundreds flocked to the public parks and playgrounds, where they slept on the grass.

In the narrow, squallid streets of the crowded city women with children in their arms sat in doorways and fire escapes, the infants crying fretfully between gasps for breath.

WILL IT COME TO THIS IN HOTTEST HUB?

A Boston thermometer putting zero on the blink will look just like this if the weather man doesn't make good on some of these "Probably cooler tonight with showers" promises he's dishing out.

When the mercury blows out the top and the glass melts then it'll be hot, hot, hot. So keep as cool as you can and wait, for it might come to this yet. You're not as hot as you can be—maybe as you will be!

The great majority, however, remained in their homes, although hundreds flocked to the public parks and playgrounds, where they slept on the grass.

SCORES DEAD IN BURNING EAST

New York, July 22 (A.P.)—The East sweltered today in a heat wave that came in from the mid-west taking toll of two scores' lives and prostrating hundreds in the cities on its course.

Temperature records were broken. Some of the high marks were: Hagerstown and Frederick, Md., 105; Knoxville, Tenn., 102; Cincinnati, 104; Philadelphia and Jersey City, 100; Springfield, Mass., 99; New Haven, 95; Boston, 94; Albany, 92; New York, 96; Buffalo, on Lake Erie, felt cool with less than 80 degrees, but further west, Chicago registered 95.

In New York it was the hottest day except one in 1915. In Albany weather records for thirty years were broken, factories had to close at Lockport, N. Y., and it was the hottest day in the history of the New Haven bureau.

Thousands sought relief at beaches and resorts. There were 150,000 visitors to Coney Island, while other cities reported proportionate crowds.

The body of George S. MacLeod, 31, drowned in Rotterdam's Pond, Lexington, was recovered after the water had been lowered.

At Mallett Bay, Vt., Adeline Jamieson, 11, although unable to swim, saved by companions, dived 100 feet of water and was drowned.

An unidentified man was seen struggling in Mirror Lake Pond, Merrimack, N. H., and went down. His body has not been recovered.

Charles Driscoll, 26, of No. 10 Richardson court, Nahant, N. H., lost his life in the Ashuelot river.

The Girl Who Never Had a Chance

By Paul Whelton

CHAPTER IV.

Just turning her eleventh birthday was Edith Louise Green, child of tragedy—"The Girl Who Never Had a Chance"—when the red flames still searing but in the memories of fighting men if not in actuality, flared overseas, flared to greatest intensity for a brief instant; then died into cold, gray ashes with the Armistice.

She was twelve when the Boston police were striking, and she was thirteen beyond the half of the year that began this decade.

There for comparison; times of trouble and turmoil, lived all one wave by the big-eyed girl who, a year had done years' labor, was bound to become the center of the world.

Then graduation from the grade school. Dressing. Waiting for income and purity. Careful hair, some short. The "dutch clip" in vogue that was to become, soon after the war, the abridge, the boy's hair—chronologically.

Boys in their own group, blue-eyed, corn-colored, ruddy-faced, of the freckles. Scuffed boys with shiny shoes, hair-combed, work under the coat, unscrupled of the girls, born for display.

LIVED THE DAYS.

Edith was beginning to be cognizant of the boys, liked the boys in a way different from that which she bore for her cousin, the gentle, blonde, Trudy. Not a tomboy, Edith, but in the eyes of the crowd, she was a girl who could not find among the boys, alone to be mated.

Not any one boy. They all liked her. They all liked her to be the disk under the murky glimmer of the lamp post. This from Beau Trask, who knew her best in those years that made the later character of Edith to be mated.

But the streets knew Edith early at night. Kinky, but friendly. May insisted on early hours, on an accounting for outside hours, insofar that they may have had opportunity to be careless stretches of time. The first night shadows closed down on the dining door of the May home, and Edith was inside the threshold.

ALL LIVED HERE.

Our crowd. The crowd gathered at its own end of the day, boys from other schools included. A friendly smile the one who, "our crowd" rode, to have the quiet, offering at secrets the mingling of teachers—the boys of youth.

Edith looked not upon one boy. They all liked her. They all liked her to be the disk under the murky glimmer of the lamp post. This from Beau Trask, who knew her best in those years that made the later character of Edith to be mated.

reptiles began to fly, the birds that flew a few feet were probably considered gibberish by the others.

A white child of ten is a genius compared with some full grown savages. The men of a million and ten million years hence, will all be geniuses compared with our greatest minds, and far above them. We are barbarians, not yet standardized.

LOYD GEORGE WARMS church societies that "the most horrible, devastating war will come unless young people of the world prevent it." Europe has greater armies than ever before, and horrible war is inevitable unless the rising generation "substitutes organized justice for organized violence."

IF WAR COMES, it will have to come. The old gambler said as he "raised the pot," that the way to discourage vice is to make it expensive. The way to discourage war is to let men learn what it costs. The thing for this country is to keep out of it, build flying machines to protect itself, and when war comes "neither a borrower nor a lender be," not a participant.

FLORENCE KROPPFELD, who continues "glorifying the American girl," but insists that she is a "modestly dressed," says, "The plumper girl is coming in." It predicts disappearance of the prevailing type that looks half starved as a result of dieting. That's good news, for the three business men who sit in front, still better news for the other man who waits the last generation to be worth while, and fears trouble when the half starved babies of half starved mothers grow up and take hold of the nation.

OPPOSITION TO new laws against the Catholic Church in Mexico is strongest, according to an Associated Press Dispatch, in the wealthy upper classes and among the Indian families.

Indians, fearing that all churches may be closed, are hastening to have infants baptized and older children confirmed.

One thousand Mexican Indian children were baptized in one week in the ancient Mexico City Cathedral.

ANOTHER DISPATCH tells of the establishment of a schismatic Catholic Church in Mexico City. Father Perez heads the "new Catholic Church of Mexico," which refuses to recognize the authority of the Holy See, and has for its program "the Mexican Church for Mexican priests." Father Perez conducted in Mexico City a mass to commemorate the death of Benito Juarez, who wrote the law that would confiscate church property in Mexico, separate church and State and forbid religious teaching in all schools, public or private.

NOTHING is more dangerous to the peace of a nation than an attack upon the religious beliefs and fears of the majority. The world will watch with interest the progress of the Mexican government's attempt to rule the Catholic Church, long so powerful in Mexico.

HOST TO REPUBLICANS AT PARTY RALLY

"HAVE YOU HEARD THIS ONE?"

PUT BUTLER IN SENATE RACE

The gathering of prominent Republicans at Princeton, in Wrentham, the home of Frederick H. Prince, served the double purpose of celebrating the formal acceptance of a $40,000 highway, turned over to Essex county by Mr. Prince, by whom it was built, for the nominal sum of $1, and the launching of the election campaign of U. S. Senator William M. Butler.

The customary laudatory speeches were made by the candidate by U. S. Senator George H. Moses and Congressman A. Piatt Andrew.

DECREE MEXICAN RAIL STRIKE IS ILLEGAL

Mexico City, July 22 (Universal)—Luis Morones, secretary of industry and commerce, after a conference with President Calles, reaffirmed the Government's position that the proposed general rail strike is illegal.

Morones pointed out that the rail was issued in sympathy with the walkout on the Isthmus of Tehuacan. He said that the latter, he said, occurred without a ten-day notice required by law and was therefore illegal. Any supporting movement against the same status of illegality, he added.

ELSIE TOO POOR TO BUY GEMS

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 21 (U. S. N. R.)—Declaring that she and her mother are too poor to purchase jewels and that on times on returning from Europe she had to borrow money for tickets, Elsie Janie at her beautiful home in Phillips Manor here yesterday contemplated ruefully the ordeal of claiming her jewels which were taken from her by United States customs officials as she left the liner Paris.

I have brought most of those jewels in and out of New York thirty-five times on trips back and forth across the Atlantic," she said. "Most of the articles were given me by dear friends on my birthday and never had any money to purchase jewelry in Europe. At times I had to borrow money to get back home and I can prove it. We are not rich by any means, as some people think."

Miss Janie said that she had been carrying the jewels that were taken from her all the time, also those that when she was robbed at Louisa villa once she attempted to come the theft, declaring that she had shored publicity of that kind.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Myopia and Princemere Polo Engaging Attention of North Shore Folk

A GREENSWARD LIKE thick velvet, sun of mid-summer radiance and spirited play by Myopians made a pretty picture for a smart gallery at Myopia when "P" and "C" teams fought it out in friendliest way.

POLO, THIRTEEN WEEKLY, is a rare fine magnet for society of the shore circles, and play varies between Myopia (red) and the two fields at Princemere—each with a very motoring distance for polo enthusiasts.

MYOPHAR "P" TEAM had on it today's players, Harry Pratt McKean, Quincy A. Shaw McKean and Russell Burdette, while the "C" team's players were Frederick Prince, the younger, also Shaw, "Paddy" Aker and Neil Dine.

SATURDAY PROMISER another polo hour, at Princemere this time, Princemere four plays Myopia. "A" team, and for the first set which follows polo religiously all paths turn Princemere next late in the afternoon of that day.

LOUIS SHAW and Augustus F. Goodwin, Philip Salmon and R. E. Small are Myopia riders on that day, and for Princemere the four constants of the tried and true—Friedrich Prince, Junior, Harry Dine, Thomas E. Proctor and Philip Whelan.

AT MYOPIA

that day, and for Princemere the four constants of the tried and true—Friedrich Prince, Junior, Harry Dine, Thomas E. Proctor and Philip Whelan.

A LONGWOOD, tennis is king and his devoted followers gather mornings and afternoons to watch the contents being waged. Miss Isabelle Montford, just back from a round of foreign tennis courts, is a daily attendant.

HER APPEARANCE on the courts, along with other local stars—Miss Edith Signorey, Mrs. William Endicott, Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, Mrs. Nat. Miles, Miss Margaret Blake and Mrs. Walter Trumbull, Jr.—was the signal for an active gallery.

MRS MUMFORD had luncheon guests, informally, after the matches, and there was a merry group at the club itself Mrs. Endicott and Mrs. Bremer lunched there, also Miss Margaret Blake.

THE LONGWOOD TOURNETS premises attraction is, of course, William Tilden, 34, whom all the tennis world, both here and abroad, knows as "the Bull." He is a guest at the Lenox during his stay in town, and fights a strenuous tennis week with impromptu fatal interludes.

THE JASPER WHITTINGS are heard from now and again as word drifts back of their foreign wanderings. Far from the beaten path of travel, Mr. and Mrs. Whitting search out the world's unusual spots, wherever fancy dictates.

NEEDS HIGH REMEDIATIONS have been on one of their interesting trips to far hinterlands. Russia, too, and Egypt. Continental Europe these two know like the proverbial book; likewise Mexico and the South American. Now they are, it is believed, doing far-northern countries where the midnight sun is shining.

MARIARDEN is very much on the social map of Southern New Hampshire's Summer season, this season, with Mrs. Guy Currier and her associates at that individual institution putting their heads together to entertain and benefit a goodly cause thereby.

FOR THE PETERBOROUGH Hospital she has arranged an annual program to be given in the Town House tomorrow evening, and dances as done by foreign neighbors in Mrs. Currier's line. In contradiction to the omnipresent Early American now stressed so much.

INTERPRETATIVE ARTISTS in this venture are Elmer Richmond, Anna O'Brien, Gillian Terrell and John and Edith Harlan. Dublin and neighboring towns will be well represented, the Summer folk bringing along their house guests to make the occasion a notable one.

PAIR REUNITED AS CHILD DIES

Out of the depths of despair, brought closer together by the great tragedy that wrenched away their only child, the father and mother of three-year-old Phyllis Johnson of East Boston, today stood on the borderland of happiness.

Death healed the breach between them, and effected a reconciliation. Standing by the bedside of the pain-wracked form whose right leg had been cruelly torn away by an electric car on Atlantic avenue, the parents' tears mingled as one as they watched the little life waned away.

When the little body in its shroud was taken to the funeral place, father and mother, with company a single seat in a coach behind the baggage car, sorrow blended, as one, with a vision of the future that is brighter than that of the past.

NO PUBLIC DAYS ON LEVIATHAN THIS TIME

Hundreds of men were busy today cleaning and repairing the giant liner Leviathan, which was successfully dry-docked at South Boston.

Officials of the United States Lines, operating the huge steamer, announced that during the time the Leviathan is in this city there will be no public inspection days.

Upholds Right of Boy to Snatch Piece of Ice

New York, July 22 (Universal).—The traditional right of small boys to grab ice from ice trucks has been upheld in court. Frank Mastandrea, driver of an ice wagon, was held for further hearing in connection with the injury of Theodore Talia, who fell under an automobile when the boy threw a bucket of water on him. Mastandrea said he buried the water because the boy was taking pieces of ice from the truck.

BOY SPEEDSTER FIRES AT COP

Stamford, Conn., July 22.—George W. Kuehnle of West Hartford, described as a freshman at the Romanist Institute of Technology at Troy, N. Y., and said to be only 16 years old, is held at Danbury on a charge of assaulting Police Officer Edward Maguire with intent to kill him, also with theft of an automobile. Kuehnle was caught through Danbury at 40 miles an hour. Police Officer Maguire, on a motorcycle, pursued and caught him. He directed the student to drive back to Danbury police headquarters, a mile distant. Kuehnle had a .38-caliber pistol and a .45-caliber revolver. After a long chase in which Kuehnle's car was wrecked, the officer overtook him and, as he was about to arrest him, Kuehnle fired at him. A flare threw stones and passed by came to the aid of the policeman.

HUNT MISSING BROCKTON MAN

Brockton, July 22.—Mystified by an apparently staged disappearance, the local police today searched through Brockton, Mass., for a missing man. The man, identified as Charles G. Baker, wealthy local wholesale fish dealer, was vanished during the electrical storm on Sunday. His wife refused to discuss the affair and store employees were equally close-mouthed.

TOILET FORM

NEW DIFFERENT—a true "Savon de Toilette"

YOU told us what you wanted, Madame—a personal soap as extravagantly lovely and luxurious as the finest French soap, but not, oh not so expensive!

We made what you asked for—and how delighted you have been! All over the country how enthusiastically you buy it—yes, twelve, eighteen cakes at a time.

"In 30 years I've never seen a success so amazing," says one important retailer. "One day Lux Toilet Form was brand new, the next day the outstanding favorite."

Lux Toilet Form is made by the very method of the French use for their toilet soaps. Yet—blessed achievement—no more expensive than the uninspired soaps you used to say you really ought to buy. Wherever toilet soap is sold, Lux Toilet Form, Co., Cambridge, Mass.

MERRY LITTLE NEGRO SETS '400'S SHOELESS STYLE

Newport, R. I., July 21.—Years ago there was a little negro named Butterfield, who played music for the famous original Cuban Glens. He was four feet, six inches of sturdiness, happy and merry. He would laugh himself all over the infield if anybody had told him he was setting a style that would be enthusiastically taken up by the society debutantes of Newport.

But the fact remains that "Butterfield," as his fellow players called him, actually set the style that is now the fad at Newport. "Butterfield" always played in his up-

Joelyn Poe, daughter of a proud, but impoverished Virginia family, wants a career, not marriage. Her mother wants her to wed. The wild blood of a line of daring women runs in her veins. She wants adventure. A seeress tells her that "wildness" is her blood. She goes to a dance. She determines she will settle the problem that night—to marry George Ransom, well-to-do, but no duddy, or—go to New York in seek of adventure. She meets a stranger at the dance.

Milton Stein, the stranger, advises Joelyn to go to the city and to dance. Joelyn, hungry and discouraged, is heard whispering by Kittie Lane, a manicurist. Kittie gets Lee Rogers, a friend, to invite them to dinner.

Keynoter at Iowa Love Feast Declares Middle West Has
Just Begun to Fight

Des Moines, July 22 (I.N.S.).—All candidates chosen at the primary of June 7 stood in the Iowa G. O. P. light of grace today, following their endorsement at yesterday's session of the State Republican Convention.

What promised early to be a loud hymn of hate against the national administration, with President Coolidge the principal target, and likewise against several party nominees, turned out to be a song of love, embracing the Chief Executive and all the successful Iowa candidates.

In a sense, the delegates knocked the insurgent block into a cocked hat and declared their intentions of fighting out all corn-belt issues, and all other issues for that matter, along traditional party lines.

HARSH WORDS UTTERED

There were harsh words for Melton, Jardine and Butler, but whenever the President's name was mentioned, he was greeted by cheers.

The convention, it was said, was a straddle. After endorsing the entire State ticket, including Senator Smith W. Broohart, it went on record as saying that "Iowa owes Senator Albert Cummins a debt that can never be repaid."

Dan W. Turner, made the keynote speech of the convention. It was plain, when he had finished, that he had spoken the sentiments of at least 90 per cent. of the delegates. He said, in part:

"These are not petty Western States; these are great Commonwealths, asking not for largesse, but for a fair share in the Nation's prosperity."

"JUST BEGUN TO FIGHT."
 "When, in this conflict, the call to surrender comes from New England, once the cradle of liberty, now selfish and self-satisfied in the midst of looms and factories; when the

of our nation's factories, when the call to surrender comes from New York and New Jersey and Delaware, once the tenting grounds of the immortal continental armies, now insolent and indifferent in the midst of money bags; when the call to surrender comes from Pennsylvania, the sacred memorial of the Declaration of Independence, the Valley Forge and Gettysburg; now arrogant and ungrateful in the midst of protected industries; when the call to surrender comes from these protected regions of our common country, Iowa answers with faith in the justice of her cause—the Middle West answers: "We have just begun to fight!"

Mexico City, July 22 (U.S.S.)—John Franklin Howard, Haverhill, Mass. manufacturer, whose romance with a woman in the Cuernavaca jail on charges of obtaining a divorce fraudulently, is not pleased with jail life and is becoming more willing to make a settlement with his wife, now in Haverhill, according to statements made today by his two sons, John C. and Albert "Red" Howard, who are present.

The two sons, who declare the only want justice for their mother who they say helped their father amass his fortune, have delivered ultimatum to the ex-manufacturer and if he accepts it they will withdraw their charges against him.

Their terms are: Delivery of $50,000 in bonds to Mrs. Howard, at $40.00 in gold; the balance to be given all real estate owned by Howard in the United States, say property to be cleared of $50,000 due against it; expenses of the two sons while in Mexico to be paid; assets charges against the sons, preferred.

If these conditions are met, the Howard sons, subject to the mother's approval they will draw their charges and their mother will drop her suit for $125,000 against Mrs. Phillips of Milwaukee. The other woman in the case, allowed the father to pursue his romance unhindered.

Mexican advisers of Howard said to be opposed to his acceptance of the terms, but the sons "state that their father is 'in a reasonable frame of mind.'" how when fifteen youths were thrown into Balsam Lake where a canoe was overturned in a ten squall Tuesday night, they got on to the upturned craft and one another as best they could and, one by one, after hours in the water, were rescued. The canoe, once they reached their hold and sank, the five other members of the party were able to maintain their grip on the keel until the canoe drifted to the shore.

A gallant boat also was placed in the water. It contained, it is reported, young men around the canoe instructing the more youthful boys how to baffle on and teaching them to keep up their courage. As they were rescued, the London sailors in the boat were able to assist until they were canoe entirely helpless and disappeared.

Nine of the drowned boys lived in Toronto, one came from Galt and one from Cobleskill. The others, who drifted ashore are under moral

As the hours passed and the cries of the boys in the water were fading, Butcher decided he should do something to help them. He was another. He offered up a prayer for the safety of those still afloat.

Jack Dempsey Fails to Make Impression on Future Boss

THIS is the truth chapter of Jack Dempsey's thrilling story in which he repels the charges of Jack Dempsey. It is the first time that the man who put Dempsey on the pugilist map tells of his experience when he was a prize fighter. Read this story every day in the Boston Evening American.

By JACK KEARNS
TENTH CHAPTER

LI always stuck to all that I've said about Les Darcy. He was a truly great fighter. He proved that by whipping the best middleweight we ever sent to Australia—Jeff Smith. Jeff was at his best when the youngster whipped him.

When I say that it was hopeless for me to try and force Darcy into keeping faith with me in New York I started back to San Francisco. I interested myself in wrestlers and put on Zhyzko and Strangler Lewis. I didn't grow rich on that match for my partners left me holding the bag when it was all over.

I was kicking around around there with Red Watson and I finally matched him to fight Basing Orrego for a little "overhead." Things weren't coming in leaps and bounds, but I've always lived on the theory that one bad day breeds a good one and there is always hope.

While in Oakland, fussing around with this match of Watson's I ran into Al Norton, the fighter.

He began to tell me about a mugg he had whipped in fight a few weeks before and something about the fellow had impressed Norton. At least he led me to believe that he had been.

I think I wouldn't give him for you to see a kick at this fellow Kearns and Norton. "What's his name?" I asked.

KEARNS GETS FIRST LOOK AT DEMPSEY

I told them they call him Young Dempsey. He ran fast. I felt he'd be out of him Jack, and he kept coming and winding all the time. Don't know nothing, absolutely nothing, but he's raw and full of stuff. If you want to bother with him. He gave me hell, even if I did bust his nose and beat him. I'll dig him up and bring him around. He hasn't got anything. You ought to look him over, now I'm telling ya.

I told Norton to produce him and if he ran into him again and I'd do him the favor of looking him over. I'd give it a thought and let him know.

One day I'm in a cafe and I see a man with a big scrawny fellow who looked more like a kid than a white man.

Norton asked me, and bringing the fellow over, said: "Kearns, this is the young fellow I was telling you about. The fellow that gave me such a tough fight. Dempsey I want you to meet Jack Kearns, a fellow who knows fighters and a man who has had good ones in all parts of the world. Al was sending me in pretty good." I could see that the fellow was a fighter.

He came up to me at all. He looked at me and said: "What's your name?" I told him my name and he said: "What's your name?" I told him my name and he said: "What's your name?"

CHAMPION FAILS TO MAKE IMPRESSION

When I saw him and a table clowning and kidding. I didn't take it. I was in luck, it was from appearances anyhow and was putting me in a good mood. I was proper.

In a joking way I asked him how he came to be in New York. He said he had been around a few weeks before.

"I don't know. I suppose it was one of those things," said Dempsey.

"Do you think you could lick him if you fought him again?" I asked.

"I really think I could. I know I can. I just didn't start the last time. I kept watching Dempsey up. He made absolutely no impression on me."

I was searching through him for some of the things that Norton seemed to think he had discovered. He was zero with me, though, I must admit. I likeable on first meeting.

I suppose it was this likeable trait in him that made us go out of that place, get into a cab and go around to see the sights. Dempsey was telling me all about it. He didn't want to be a fighter and he didn't want to be a fighter.

BOXING KING IN SHIP YARDS

"I've got a good job up in the ship yards at Seattle and I think I'll take a train in the morning and hit up the job," he said.

"I have always found that experience is the best teacher. That's why thousands of truck drivers—pilots of the really big 'uns—tell me that there is nothing like Socony Gasoline and Motor Oil for a power combination.

"Incidentally, I hope you'll use the Socony Touring Service, Room 1211, 75 Broadway, New York City. Free Socony maps and touring information for the asking."

The Veteran Testimonial

Being one of a series of testimonials that every motorist should know.

First Truck Driver (enjoying a cold bottle of pop after a quick and easy run up the Mohawk Trail):

What's been keeping you? I passed you fifteen minutes ago half way up the Big Hill.

Second Truck Driver (not afraid to speak the truth):

You said a mouthful, Bill. You see, I sort of neglected to fill up with Socony this morning when I left Worcester and I tried a different gas. Never again. Give me Socony every time for power and pull on the long hills.

her for a new set of instale

THIS is the best way to travel. It is fast, it is comfortable, it is safe, it is cheap, it is convenient, it is reliable, it is efficient, it is economical, it is practical, it is sensible, it is reasonable, it is just the way to go.

THESE are the best of times for the motor car. It is the most important invention since the wheel. It has changed the world, it has changed the life of every man, woman and child. It has made the world smaller, it has made life easier, it has made the world a better place.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE HOUSE IN THE SHADOW

By L. A. Cunningham

THE Penfield place had not faded for the last of the night. We could like to have the mill turn down, because it has been like a five-year-old, but there is quite a little bit of our money tied up in it and if it were demolished we would get nothing.

"If it goes to work again, we will get our share. It is an awful drag on us, with the heavy insurance we have to pay," said Mrs. Penfield.

"The Penfields were rich then, but now they are poor," said Mr. Penfield. "I have had to sell the mill, and I have had to sell the house. I have had to sell everything I own, and I have had to sell my soul."

"You have money invested in the dry-house of this mill, but he will not accept that for the mortgage," said Mr. Penfield. "I would not have her marry her!" Just for the sake of his money. He has tried to force her. You know he has a mortgage on this house.

"I am going to let the insurance drop. And I think I can sell my share in the mill to John Hetherington. The insurance was too high, and I have not been commuted. Now I have nothing but the prospect of renewal and bolder persecution from Hetherington."

"Then John Hetherington came forward to secure Stokess of setting the place to his own mill. Stokess was not to be refused because Stokess had the support of his testimony another man, a friend from the penitentiary. They had been in the mill since Stokess was a boy, and Stokess was a boy."
